

Celebrate Mother Earth

Art Project:

What You Need

- Crayons in blue and green, brown and white are optional
- Scissors
- Wax paper
- Paper towel
- Iron
- String

What to do:

- Lay a piece of wax paper out flat on the work surface.
- Use a drinking cup or other stencil to draw a circle on the wax paper.
- Parents should shave the crayons using the blade on a pair of scissors or the edge of a knife.
- Have your child place the different colored crayon shavings within the circle however they like. Blue for water, green and brown for land, white for cloud formations.
- Cut a piece of string about twelve-inches long. Double the string over and place the open ends together, lay them onto the crayon shavings. When the shavings melt in the following steps, the string will be melded into the cooled crayon to form your hanger.
- Place another piece of wax paper on top of the crayon shavings being careful not to disturb the shavings.
- Place a piece of paper towel on top of the wax paper.
- With iron on low setting, a grown up can apply heat to melt the crayon shavings. Allow it to cool completely.
- Once cooled, use scissors to trim the creation into a circle, trimming off any excess if necessary. Be very careful not to cut your string!
- Carefully peel off one side of the wax paper, then the other.
- Hang in a window.
